

United States

California

Ani Ahavah, Santa Barbara

As a Global Family ambassador, it is obvious to me that we must Return to the Land...Go Back to our Roots in this Earth that we share...Return to The COMMONS...before land ownership, colonization and separation from Nature and each other was institutionalized. We have a Seniors' Garden at El Patio Gardens Community where I live in Santa Barbara. I'm learning to merge my mission-driven drive with the rhythms and cycles and processes of Nature, a day at a time in the unfolding now moment. This practice of "living in process" like the rest of Nature," supports a shift from "human-centric" thinking to a "life-centric-living." Our thanks goes to Kelley Kelsey and her "sacred economics" funding that makes this regenerative experience with Nature & each other possible.